BERLIN, May 24.—With King George of England, the Czar of Russia and Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany among the 54 rulers, consorts, princesses, dukes and duchesses about the altar of the chapel at Potsdam, the marriage of Princess Victoria Louise to Prince Ernst of Cumberland, Duke of Brunswick and claimant to the Hanover throne, took place this afternoon. Although it is said that the wedding is the result of a purely love match, it is claimed that the Kaiser "framed" it. It was arranged to end the long feud between the Hohenzollerns and the Guelphs. It is pointed out that with Prince of Cumberland a member of the Kaiser's household, the Guelphs would hardly take up a dispute in behalf of his claim to the Hanover throne.

The wedding took place at 5 o'clock. The bride and groom entered the chapel first, being followed by the beaming Kaiser and other members of the immediate families. Following the religious ceremony in the little church, the wedding party repaired to the royal rooms where the civil service was performed.

The bride appeared charming in a white silk gown. While the dress was handsome, it was not more so than many worn by American brides. The details of the construction of the dress were kept secret until today. Socialistic criticism being feared by members of the royal family.

The petticoat worn by the bride was made by 50 girls who worked on it for months before it reached completion. Other details of the bride's wedding array were simple, but elegant.

Berlin is bedecked in festive array for the event. All of the business places in the city are arrayed in national colors, and business has virtually been suspended. "The people are making a holiday of the day."

Among those present were the King and Queen of England, the King and Queen of Saxony, the King of Prussia, the Prince and Princess of Bavaria, who acted for the king who is in a mud-house, the Queen of Greece, the King of Italy and Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne.

THIS IS THE YOUNG
BANKER WHO FOUGHT
DEATH FOR A WEEK.

MACON, Ga., May 24.—The whole country regretted the death of B. Sanders Walker, the rich young banker who made such a gallant fight against death following the swallowing of a bichloride of mercury tablet by mistake. For a whole week the banker faced into death with wonderful cheerfulness. He knew he was doomed, but he made every mental effort to aid the doctors in their fight to stave off the end. Measures suggesting various methods of treatment were received before he died from every quarter of the country, showing that his case was watched with keen interest.

GARY DINNERS WILL NOT BE
SECRET, STEEL MEN DECIDEChairman of Steel Corporation Quotes President Wilson and Takes Fling at Income Tax.

NEW YORK, May 24.—E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, quoted President Wilson at the annual meeting yesterday of the American Iron & Steel Institute, as saying honestly had nothing to fear from the Democratic administration, and added:

"Let us accept that statement as coming from President Wilson to mean just what he said, and let us feel assured."

When Judge Gary took his seat a resolution calling for public meetings of the institute hereafter, instead of executive sessions, was introduced and unanimously adopted.

Judge Gary in his talk alluded to what he called "the disposition of legislative bodies to tinker with questions they are not very well prepared to discuss or decide," mentioning particularly the passage of laws which he said were calculated to produce distress.

"I think, for instance," he continued, "the proposition to assess the incomes of men who have incomes of more than $4,000 and exempting the income of those who receive less than $4,000 per annum is one of the worst things that has ever happened in this country because it immediately arrays 97 per cent. of the people against 3 per cent. of the people."

"I have not any doubt that at the present time there is a disposition on the part of some of the leading financiers of the country, and perhaps those whose influence is needed to carry on the best interests of the country, to withdraw their financial support from extensions of various kinds, and that we are feeling the effects to some extent."

On the other hand we have at the present time before us the possibility, and I think the probability, of action by one department of government, the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is calculated to produce very good results. I believe the railroad companies will secure the right to advance their rates 5 per cent."

KERN RESOLUTION HELD UP.

Will Be Amended in Committee to Provide Investigation.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Senator Locke Smith today gave his reasons for withholding the report on the resolution providing for an investigation of the alleged peonage system in West Virginia. Smith is chairman of the educational and labor committee which is considering the resolution presented in the Senate by Senator Kern, majority leader of the upper house.

The Senator explained this morning that the resolution will probably be reported on the floor on Monday. He said that the members of the committee are preparing amendments, which will provide for a more specific line of investigation.

Nearly 20 men employed by P. Sinnott's Sons on the contract for the new roundhouse at the Dickerson Run yards of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad have gone out on strike. They demand $2.25 for a 10-hour day, or that they be asked only to work nine hours for the $2 they are being paid.

Work on the roundhouse is being interfered with because of the labor trouble. The contractors are seeking to employ other men at $2 a day for 10 hours.

AN ECHO OF MANAGER WILSON

Former Coker Leader Gave Security for Work Which Contractors Say Is Not Sufficient to Meet Obligations;
President Hays Makes an Offer.

Whether Connellsville will continue to have baseball will probably be decided within the next few days, when it will be known whether the Keystone Planning Mill Company will permit the fence it erected about Fayette Field a year ago to stand. If the company carries out its intention of removing the fence next Wednesday the game in Connellsville will be dead for a time at least.

Fayette Field is the property of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company. More than a year ago it was leased to H. C. Hays, who sublet it to W. C. Wilson, then manager of the Cokers. Wilson contracted with the planning mill company for the erection of a fence and gave a collateral note for the $1,000. The fence was completed. Shortly after the fence was completed, Wilson lost his franchise in the baseball league and retired from the game.

When the lumber company endeavored to collect on the note from Wilson, it was compelled to take over a third interest in a farm, which it claims is only worth $500. It expects to realize $300 on the chairs that were in the grandstand last year, making a total of $800 out of the $1,000. The balance of the bill the company is trying to collect from the present lessee of the ground.

Mr. Hays agrees to give the company $400 at the close of the baseball season and is willing to promise the payment of the remaining $500 next summer. The company is apparently willing to accept the $300, but it must be paid over before next Tuesday, or the fence will be torn down.

Robert L. Hannan, and Treasurer William F. Mier assert that the directors of their firm are unwilling to permit the indebtedness to exist in its present form for a longer period.

The series of Connellsville baseball fans would be sorry to see the efforts of Mr. Hays and Manager Tom Slocum to represent the town with a winning ball team this year frustrated.

BIG Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Ministers Will Address the Members
Tomorrow Afternoon.

A meeting out of the ordinary and which should be of great interest will be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Sunday afternoon from 2:45 to 4:30. The purpose will be to hear what the Y. M. C. A. can do in Connellsville from the standpoint of the ministers and churchmen. After a musical program by the Presbyterian orchestra and the Methodist Protestant choir, eight-minute talks on what the Y. M. C. A. is doing in Connellsville will be given by six pastors.

These talks will be followed by a short business session of the board at which plans for next week's work will be outlined.

This meeting is for all men interested in the work the Y. M. C. A. can do in Connellsville, and the members of the men's Bible classes will be especially urged to attend. A large attendance is anticipated.

GAME CALLED OFF.

Grounds Too Wet for the Colors to Play Today.

On account of wet grounds the scheduled game between the Cokers and McKeesport teams will not be played at Fayette Field this afternoon.

The almost continuous rains that have fallen since Thursday have placed the playing field in such condition that a game today is impracticable.

Manager Tom Slocum visited the field early this morning to see if something could not be done to drain the field and the results were such that he over it in pools, but he found that any attempt in this direction would be fruitless.

A telegram was sent to the McKeesport management, notifying them that the game was cancelled.

PLAN AUTO CLUB.

Every Little Good Road Movement
Has a Meaning All Its Own.

Connellsville may have an independent automobile club. More than a score of auto owners are understood to be interested in the proposed organization and it is expected that they will be able to interest the majority of the 130 owners in town.

It is planned to organize the club for the purpose of securing better roads for this section of the county. It was stated this morning by Burgess J. L. Evans, who is interested in the proposition, that a meeting to effect an organization will likely be held in a week or 10 days.

CHARGES OF GRAFT ARE MADE

Attorney Dawson Declares that Pres-entments Will be Returned to the June Grand Jury; Enthusiastic
Meeting of the Organization.

Township supervisors throughout Fayette County came in for condemnation and commendation last night at the Automobile Club of Fayette County's good roads meeting at the Hotel Royal. As a result of the session it was probable that proceedings will be instituted against several road supervisors the organization believes dishonest.

The meeting was attended by 80 members and their friends. More than a score came from Uniontown in a special car, and others were in attendance from Masontown, Dawson and other parts of the county.

Following short talks by Dr. S. D. Woods, Dr. J. C. McClelland and Dr. R. Goldsmith, Connellsville; Dr. J. L. Goshorn, Harrisburg; Frank T. Dawson, Earl E. Hurd, J. W. Dawson and O. W. Kennedy, Uniontown, the members of the club repaired to the dining room when A. D. Soliman, the host, had a tasty luncheon prepared.

The motion providing that steps be taken to prosecute township supervisors who are dishonest in handling of road funds followed several speeches in which an alleged system of graft was strongly attacked. It was offered by Attorney Dawson, who moved that the highway committee be given power to have proceedings started against supervisors they believe dishonest. The committee has considerable data upon which to work, and Attorney Dawson asserted that several cases will be brought before the June grand jury.

The first speaker of the evening was Dr. Woods, and he was naturally first to mention the word "graft" in connection with road improvement work.

"Under the old supervisor system," he said, "the roads were not improved. Everything was left to the supervisor and if the roads were worked over each year so the township supervisors kept from paying damages for broken wagons, etc. Everything was broken and the taxes used for graft or some other purpose, yet the people were taxed to the limit. They believed they had no redress. In this part of the county the roads were almost impossible, but since the automobile and the automobile club have been in existence we can see great improvements in roads. We want more and better roads. Therefore there was something no system even by the club. Now if the club would unite by appointing or electing a commission or committee, selecting one from each district of the county, and instruct them to formulate a working basis, select the roads to be improved, and submit the report to the grand jury, and the roads would be improved, but since the automobile and the automobile club have been in existence we can see great improvements in roads. Lawyer Gibson, Alleged Victim, Scene Of His New Trial, Judge and Lawyers

NEWBURGH, N. Y., May 24.—Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer accused of the murder of his client, Mrs. Rose M. Szabo, in order to secure her little fortune of $10,000, faced his second trial for his life in the court house here with the assertion that this time he will be acquitted. He was tried last fall at Leon, N. Y., and the jury disagreed. The second trial bids fair to be even more sensational than the first because it was said that new evidence had been obtained. The case attracted wide attention because of its mystery. It was alleged by the state that the lawyer choked Mrs. Szabo while dining with her on Greenwood lake, N. Y., before the boat capsize. Gibson claims that the boat simply over-turned and that the woman was drowned after having made vain efforts to save herself. Gibson set up as a motive that Gibson obtained possession of his client's money after he had buried her quietly in Jersey City, N. J., by presenting a false power of attorney from some one who posed as Mrs. Szabo's mother, the prosecution claiming that the mother had been dead for two years. District Attorney J. D. Wilson, Jr., appeared for the state, and Henry Kohl, a local lawyer, was assigned by Judge Arthur S. Tompkins as Gibson's attorney. Robert Elder of New York, who represented Gibson at the first trial, having withdrawn except in an advisory capacity.

CELEBRITY AND CIRCULATION.

Our enterprising contemporary, The News, publishes and enthusiastically congratulates itself upon the alleged fact that it beat The Courier to it on Black Thursday, when the accident at the West Penn power house put both publishing offices out of commission from just before 11 o'clock in the morning until shortly before 3 o'clock in the evening.

The News claims to have gotten out its first edition of 100 copies by hand and to have beaten The Courier to the streets with its last edition by an hour. As a matter of fact, The Courier was closer on the heels of The News with a complete hand-set account of the power house disaster and a whole front page filled with the latest news events, while there was nothing in The News except some boiler plate and a part of a column in the edition was only 100 and our last edition little more, we could get 'em out faster; but it takes a little more time to print and dispose of over 7,000 papers daily, than it does to get out several hundred.

DISINTEGRATION.

The very venacious but somewhat biased Conneltsville News tells its readers that the Republican party is approaching disintegration and triumphant Democracy is in the saddle. It is true that Accidental Democracy is in the saddle, and it might be added that it is riding like the proverbial beggar. But the Republican party has not been buried yet, notwithstanding the insistence of the Democratic undertaker. Its Democratic fair has left some survivors, but they are mending. Time is a great healer. In the meantime the Democrats will have all they can attend to keeping peace in the family now that the pie and cake is about to be passed around with the prospect of an alarming deficit.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE UNCOUPLED.

The secret of the delay in the completion of the Buckhannon & Northern railroad doubtless lies in the fact that the triple railroad alliance found its progress hampered by the Virginia statute forbidding joint ownership, and now that this problem has been solved by the Lake Erie taking over the whole project there is no reason to doubt the accuracy of the statement that the railroad will be finished as promptly as possible and put into commission. Its operation will have a stimulating effect upon Greene county development and will probably add materially to the eastern coal traffic of the Western Maryland via Conneltsville.

The Democrats at Washington propose an appropriation of $1,500,000 for the erection and equipment of a government armor plate plant. The Democratic statement does not seem to know any more about the cost of armor plate mills than they do about the tariff. A practical man would estimate the cost of such a mill at $16,000,000 instead of $1,500,000. Still, it was a close guess, for a Democratic expert from far Arizona.

In the construction of water power dams in West Virginia, the rule laid down by Governor Hatfield is Safety First.

The Medical Evangelists declare that the Americans will soon be a race of crazy people, and that a crazy government will result. Our mental decay is said to be progressive. We have always suspected that much of this "progressive" government is more or less crazy in character.

The Sheepskin branch was on the slide and sometimes on the hog yesterday.

It seems to be more trouble to get enough men to go to camp than it did in the earlier days of the militia, but this is due to the fact that more is now required of the soldier. Enlistment is for a full term, not for unemployment week.

Railroad paydays will come faster, but we are not sure that they will come better.

It was probably a little surprising to some of the good Washington county people to find that Ross Perouse didn't have horns and a tail, and that he didn't carry a blackjack in his hip pocket or a blacksnake whip in his hand; but that he looked a statesman and made a statesmanlike speech.

The Conneltsville coke region is not without its moving pictures of local interest. Just now the Frick Safety First films are running Fred Rainey's African games a hard race.

In view of the number of human beasts who seem to be running around Western Pennsylvania intent on nameless crimes against children, perhaps the Legislature had better consider the propriety of extending the act regulating the denaturing of animals.

The Talontown autoists had a Royal good time last night.

The promoters of the Clark Commission Government bill for third class cities fear it will be amended on second reading, and the friends of good government fear it won't. The best way to amend the Clark bill is to strike everything out after the enacting clause.

The Harrisburg Patriot, which is owned and inspired by the junior member of the Democratic Triumvirate, opines that the Democratic victory was due to "the campaign of education carried on by the Democrats for several years past." What, when, where?

Bill Finn announces that he will have a city ticket in the field at the coming Pittsburgh election. Having failed rather disastrously as a state and national political boss, Bill is trying for his old job as a municipal boss.

It looks as if the Legislature is preparing to give millions more improvements, but not a damn cent to the Youth.

Governor Hatfield's integrity and justice has been certified by Eugene Debs. The fact will help the peaceful and satisfactory settlement of West Virginia mining difficulties more than the firm of Kern & Jones can ever hope to do.

Senator La Follette, the original Progressive, describes the Democratic efforts at Washington as "Tariff-making in the dark." Yes; very dark.

Senator Penrose has taken to the road.

The Progressive element was conspicuous by its absence from the farmers' meeting in Washington county. The tiller of the soil is still Progressive agriculturally if not politically.

The curfew is paying its periodical call on Conneltsville. Its stay is usually very brief.

Some of the newspapers which failed to get the job of publishing the Constitutional Amendments want to impeach the Secretary of the Commonwealth for "malfeasance in office." The Secretary will probably sit tight.

A Pittsburgh Councilman wanted to pass an ordinance regulating feminine fashions. The Council should have passed the ordinance and appointed its author a committee of one to enforce it.

The farmers are not for Free Trade. The Washington county gathering recognized the value of a fair and fairly protective tariff.

It is announced that railroad construction will open four new coal mines in Washington county this year. This railway system has not reached into Greene county yet, but that coaling field is doing quite well with its present railroad facilities.

In this section timber land is almost as valuable as coal land, chiefly because of the development of the coal.

The Government proposes to erect its own armor plate plant. Perhaps some of the private manufacturers of armor plate will be glad to sell their plants at very reasonable prices.

The Professional

Shopper.

There are in Conneltsville and other cities smart, up-and-doing women who are known as professional shoppers.

They know where the best values may be found in every conceivable article of apparel or adornment for man, woman and child.

The one great source of this information is the daily advertising news contained in THE COURIER and other papers of quality.

These professional shoppers are employed by people who have not the time or ability to do their own shopping.

But we know it to be a fact that hundreds of women do their own shopping with equal skill and far greater satisfaction—simply because they are bright enough and energetic enough to do what the professional shopper does: Keep posted.

CLOSED ALL

DECORATION DAY

Four Days' Sale--25% Off

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday,
May 26, 27, 28 and 29

Will be banner days at this store. We started out on the first of this month to make our sales larger than ever before in the month of May. To do this we have from time to time during the month offered and sold to the people of this vicinity more and better bargains than we were ever before able to offer. We trust that you secured your share—we offered you the opportunity and it was your duty to take advantage and your loss if you did not. We want to put it plainly to you that these bargain sales of ours are different from the ordinary bargain sales, and that when this store talks less prices it means that some one is going to get goods for less than usual—good, dependable goods, too.

For these four days before Decoration Day we call your attention to the items mentioned below. We have enough of each for four days busy selling, and if you need any of these you cannot afford to stay away from this store on these days. You'll find the original prices on these and you can figure for yourself just how much of a saving this means to you.

Ingrain Carpets

One-Fourth Less.

Every two-ply Ingrain Carpet in stock, all wool and cotton chins, and ranging in price at from 40 cents the yard to 75 cents the yard—if your room takes around 25 yards that means a saving of from $2.50 to pretty near $5.00.

Ladies' Waists

One-Fourth Less.

Every waist in the store—lingerie and tailored—that means a saving that's worth considering. Every size from 34 to 44, and every price from $1.50 up to $5.00 and $10.00.

Coats and Suits

Every coat and every suit in the store for one-fourth less than the regular price. That means a saving of from $5.00 to $15.00 on every suit, and from $2.50 to $7.00 on every coat you buy.

Children's and Misses' White Dresses

One-Fourth Less.
Sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years, and priced from $2.00 up to $10 and $12. Every dress made as you would have them made and of materials such as you would choose. You'll appreciate what a bargain this is once you see the dresses.

Wilton Rugs

Fourth Size.
Sizes 37 by 54 and 38 by 53. Prices run from $4.00 to $8.00, and one-fourth off means that you can buy them on these four days at from $3.00 to $6.00. Plenty of these for your choosing; good patterns, this season's goods.

We have made these prices because we believed that if we offered you dependable merchandise at less than you could buy it for elsewhere you would come here for it, and also because we want your help to make these days the four busiest days in this store's history.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL NO. 64.

This plan stands out in bold contrast to the Bungalow types which form the major part of this collection. It is of the design known as a square type, two-story house, and is intended for a large family. No pains have been spared to make it convenient and no waste room is to be found anywhere, even the small space under the stair landing has been utilized as a place for shoes, and is reached by means of a small door in the Dining Room. A coat closet is put under the stairs in the Hall. The large living room with its brick mantel and large window seat makes a pleasant place for the family to gather and spend the long winter evenings. The Dining Room is ample for the use of a large family and is greatly enhanced by the window seat which may be kept filled with flower plants. A cool retreat for a summer evening is found on the "screened porch" opening off the dining room. The kitchen is free from built-in furniture, excepting the sink and a small china cupboard flush with the wall over color stais. The "pantry" is compact and complete with cupboard, and work table with bin and drawers under.

The second floor contains four large sleeping rooms, the two in front being connected with a cased opening being used by the parents and small children. The Bath is complete in every detail. The attic furnished good storage room.

How to Reduce Insurance Rates?

The conditions are in the hands of the policyholder. The insurance man reads the conditions and applies them in formulating the rate.

The average insurer is a careless business man. He will employ counsel to advise him on every transaction of a technical nature, yet will frequently entrust his Fire Insurance to some relative or friend, whose sole claim is that he can procure policies at current tariff rates.

To obtain the Lowest Rates is only one of the duties of an in-

CHAPTER VIII.

The fireworks. Every evening after that, except when it stormed, the prisoners went up on the roof. These evenings were the pleasantest part of the days. During the day the chevalier read the daily papers and magazines with great interest. He found plenty of interesting news there, especially the progress of the confederated navy and army. One article, very well written by one of the chief engineers, particularly attracted his attention. That article described the Z ray and its destroyer. The supply station of destruction was made, from which place heavy cables were laid to reach the 30th longitudinal meridian, along which the Z ray ran. The heaviest current of electricity was conducted by this tremendous cable to three specially built boats. The Sampsonian vibrating rays were generated on these boats. Each ray made 3,000,000 vibrations a second and all were directed in a horizontal line toward the Z ray belt. In time the wall of isolation would fall down under the immense force playing against it, and the invasion of America would follow.

After a long study the chevalier placed the magazine on the table and muttered: "The time for action is nearing."

One evening, at the dinner table the chevalier asked Captain Euler if he could have some material for pyrotechnical displays in order to lessen the monotony of their existence.

The kind captain furnished everything he asked for. The countess offered her services and they worked almost all afternoon the next day getting the fireworks ready. Di Leon seemed to be an expert; he soon had a large Japanese wheel, several turning stars and also a number of long sky rockets ready.

When evening came they excitedly prepared for the grand fireworks. The sky was clear and the moon had not yet risen. Chevalier di Leon arranged the different pieces, and when the captain came up he fired the first air runner. The long rocket went high up in the air, whirling and whistling, and then, with a puff, broke into the clouds of red sparks. Another puff brought white and the third brought blue.

The next was the Japanese sun; this was fastened to the center of the roof. It circled and sparkled for a long time.

The chevalier was deeply interested in his projectiles and, as the countess assisted him, Captain Euler had to play the part of audience. There was a larger audience outside their inclosure, but that was another world.

When all the set pieces were used the chevalier looked up in the sky, seemingly searching for something; at last his hand went into his pocket and, bringing out an object not unlike a Browning pistol, he said: "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I will show you something new in the pyrotechnical art."

He elevated his arm. After a few twirlings and twistings of the instrument a click was heard and then came the whizzing sound of a bullet. "Now watch right above us."

Five minutes later, at an immense height, a flash occurred. Directly after the flash a spiral light began to descend, slowly; then, after several minutes, an explosion followed that put an end to the dropping spiral of fire and above them a small white cloud puff slowly fell downward.

"That was a beauty!" commented Captain Euler.

"Have you any more?" inquired the countess.

"I am sorry, madam, but this is the last for tonight," answered Chevalier di Leon, with eyes turned steadily toward the southeast. They all sat down, and Captain Euler and the countess started a conversation in which the chevalier refused to take part; he was watching the sky and the stars. It was much later than usual when he returned to his cell; but he was satisfied at last; he had seen a star that winked at him familiarly.

The next day the countess asked if they were to have fireworks again, but the chevalier thought it would lose its charm if they had the displays too often. He retired to his room that evening, complaining of a slight headache.

"Small I call the post doctor?" asked Captain Euler, but the chevalier declined.

When in his sleeping-room he looked over the contents of his small baggage and selected a number of articles that he packed into one bundle. Then he left the room.

The reading-room was the one that was connected with the outer world by the stairway that ran to the roof. The chevalier stepped quickly to the door leading to the corridor and listened; he could hear the entry walking up and down. He saw with satisfaction that the door could be locked on the inside with key and bolts; then he examined the door that led to the roof. It was a heavy door, that could be locked only from the inside. He silently crept up the stairs and peered into the inclosure; under one of the plants, in the shade, was the countess' rooming. There were a number of heavy objects with which the door could be barricaded.

He quickly descended, without being seen by the countess, and inspected her room. Apparently finding everything to his satisfaction, he picked up a book from the table and joined the countess.

"Are you feeling better, my dear chevalier?"

"I thank you, countess, yes. And how are you? Does not this imprisonment tell on your nerves?"

She sighed. "Chevalier, I think it does. If I were in a dark dungeon it could hurt me more; but a prison is a prison, and gilt bars are hateful."

"Why are you here?"

She smiled sadly. "You ask me why I am here as if you did not know my mission."

"Your mission—then you are not a prisoner?"

"I am a prisoner just as long as you are one, chevalier. My fate binds me to you. Why should I hesitate to tell you?" She looked around, and then in a whisper she continued: "I am in the service of the international police, chevalier, and I was sent to you to get your secret." Great tears rolled down her cheeks. "Chevalier, please do not interrupt me; I want you to know all. The chancellor wants to know your mission in Europe, from whom you came and the secret of your mission."

She was now openly sobbing. "Neither speak for some time; at last the chevalier turned to the countess: 'It is just possible that I am making the greatest mistake of my life, but what is the difference—you have been frank with me, and I will be frank with you.'"

She lifted her face quickly.

The chevalier thought for a second. "Would you like to get rid of all that belongs to the past? Would you come with me?"

She looked at him with such unutterable longing that he felt drawn toward her; he actually started toward the fascinating woman with arms extended. Then his snar nature reminded him of all that would result from letting their friendship merge into a love affair, and he stopped.

A wave of rage swept over her when she saw his hesitation and decision, but she whispered softly: "I shall go with you."

"Now we are becoming real conspirators; be prepared so that at a moment's notice you can leave."

"Where will you take me?"

"Wherever my stars lead!" was his enigmatical answer, as he left the roof and went to his room to sleep.

Night came again, the captain left them alone at 9:30, saying that he had some writing to do.

Chevalier di Leon watched the sky, which was somewhat cloudy; there was a strong wind that drove the ragged wanderers to and fro.

The twinkling star he had observed several times before was stationed in the eastern sky.

Neither of the prisoners talked; both seemed to be fully occupied with their thoughts. Suddenly at Leon turned to the dreaming countess: "Are you willing to leave with me tonight, in half an hour?"

"But how absurd that is, chevalier!" "Do you trust me implicitly?"

"I do!"

"Then go to your room and get all the things that you need to take along ready. Will half an hour be enough?"

"I will be ready."

He led the countess down to her room, and from that moment the chevalier became enemy itself. First of all, he locked the door of the reading-room. Then he ran into his own room, picked up his bundle of belongings and hurriedly placed it on the roof. He arranged several heavy objects around the trapdoor leading to the reading-room and then sent a rocket from his signal gun toward the twinkling star.

The light that followed was taken as a warning by the superstitious soldiers on duty below; the red and white stripes of the American flag high up in the air, and the silvery stars on the blue background completed the flag that was consoling so much annoyance to Europe.

The red star above twinkled reassuringly and a second later the roof of the prison was flooded with a strong light. The chevalier ran down and knocked at the countess' door. "Are you ready?"

"I am," she replied and appeared with a small suitcase in her hand.

Just as they opened the door leading to the roof, a secret door in the wall, that had escaped the chevalier's scrutiny, opened and Captain Euler stepped into the room.

"To the roof, countess," the chevalier whispered in the ear of the woman and he stepped before the captain. Back of the captain, through the half-open door, he could see several soldiers.

"Your recent fireworks have aroused some suspicion, chevalier."

"I am sorry, captain, but I cannot stop to explain things to you just now; I am in a hurry."

"In a hurry?"

"Yes, my dear captain. I have just time enough to thank you for your kind hospitality, and to bid you farewell."

The captain stepped forward, but before he could touch the chevalier there was a flash that blinded all. By the time the captain had recovered enough to shout: "To the devil with your jokes!" the chevalier was gone.

Captain Euler ran to the roof door, only to find it barricaded; it took some time for them to force the door, and when they reached the roof and played their searchlight over the whole space, not a soul was to be found.

An hour later Astra received her message from Napoleon Edison.

The following morning early risers in Berlin were treated to a novel sight. High above the city, a white-headed, tremendously large eagle appeared; it circled above the town for a while, then turned suddenly toward the west and disappeared with a rapidity that was astounding.

The learned Professor Kipfelheimer, a noted zoologist who was one of the first to see it, was certain that the bird was a genuine American eagle.

CHAPTER IX.

In the Master's Workshop.

The following day was a long one for Astra; hope, joy and the expectation of seeing the man who was able to do so much made her restless.

Shortly before noon a report came from the Z ray generating station advising that a peculiar vibration seemed to be forcing the rays backward. Orders were given to establish the new Z zone, also to watch for further disturbances and, after a lapse of six hours, to remove the first line of resistance, leaving the new Z ray to meet the invaders.

Astra was happy indeed when she descended to the library to await Napoleon's arrival. As the hands of the chronometer pointed to ten, she listened intently. The main door was opened just as the clock gave forth its tinkling warning. A moment later Napoleon Edison was admitted to the library and Astra hurried toward him with welcoming hands.

She saw at a glance that his healthy bronze complexion was gone and that he was thinner. She also noted the unfamiliar clothes he was wearing.

"I am so glad that you have come at last!" were her first words.

"I have longed to come, Miss Prudent, but I was detained in a prison, where I had everything but liberty."

"Please be seated; you must be weary after your long trip." She led him to a chair and took a seat opposite. "There has not been a day, since your visit here, that I have not longed for some news from you. And you, all the time, were in prison?"

Edison said: "I crossed the isolator in my aerodrome, ascending thousands of feet to get over. My assistant engineer, Santos Duprel, was with me; we landed on the deserted Zugspitze, in Germany. I alone descended on skis to Partenkirchen, where I purchased European clothes. Duprel and I were in constant communication with each other until my imprisonment, which came so quickly that I had no chance to advise him. I had the honor, before I was confined, to meet his majesty, the Emperor of Germany, the Prince of Wales, and, above all, the Count von Wardenstein, who is the real ruler of Europe."

"Are your plans for our defense formulated?" Astra asked.

"I will, with your permission, tell them in a more detailed manner at the workshop. I hope you will accompany me there as soon as you can."

"I am ready to go at any time; only you know I cannot leave the capital for a long period. Besides, I must lay a decided plan of action before the continental congress meets, day after tomorrow. Where is your plant?"

He looked at her in surprise, but all he could see in her face was frank expectation, and in a measured voice he said:

"On the Island of Clyre."

"Clyre?" whispered Astra.

"At last you have spoken the word!" said Napoleon eagerly. "The word I have been expecting to hear you say."

Astra looked at Napoleon questioningly; evidently there was something back of that that she was supposed to know. Napoleon read her thoughts: "Miss Prudent, I will enlighten you. When I discovered the element of which your ring is made I came to your father. He was a friend and teacher. When your father realized the value of my discovery and saw the far-reaching possibilities of this wonderful metal he gave me full instructions, and I based my further experiments on them."

"His prophetic soul foresaw the events that are now upon us, and he was anxious to know the results of my experiments. Three days before his death I received a letter from him. I had just returned from the trial trip of my aerodrome. I was intoxicated with my success. The American Eagle, my first aerodrome, was a marvel, but I will come to that later. I hurried to the capital as soon as I read your father's letter, but was too late! How happy he would have been to know that I had won, that no nation can destroy the work of his lifetime!"

Napoleon's voice softened to a whisper. "But his last letter told me that you would be instructed to go to the Island of Clyre and that, when I met you, you would greet me with the word you have just spoken, 'Clyre!'"

"The name I have given to this element."

Astra's eyes filled with tears. The memory of the last hour of her father returned to her in its smallest detail, and then she told Napoleon how the dying man had tried to tell her everything, but that the shock caused by the message from Count von Wardenstein had killed him before he could do so, though with his last strength he had written, in shaking letters, the word: "Clyre!"

"I cannot tell what he said about you," finished Astra, smiling at Napoleon through her tears. "All I can say is that I am very happy today, for you have come."

Her expressive eyes told even more, and Napoleon Edison felt that he was amply rewarded for the services he had rendered, not for the girl he loved, but for the country they both loved.

"I have one favor to ask, your excellency!"

"Whatever it is, I will grant it in advance."

"The Countess Rosette, whom I have mentioned, and who played a part in the plot, is hidden in our continent. She is in the waiting-room. I brought her with me, thinking you would not let her go without trying to aid her. Under your care, I feel sure she will regain all that is good in her nature and lose all that is bad."

"She is welcome," Astra said, simply, and started to summon an attendant, but Napoleon interrupted her.

"Astra, permit me. Before you call her, I wish we could make arrangements for your visit to my island."

"How long does it take to make the trip?"

Edison smiled. "The word 'distance' is stricken from the American dictionary. I will place you on the island within three hours."

"Where is your island?"

"Where the 124 degree N. of Greenwich and the 34 degree N. meet."

"In the Pacific Ocean! Wonderful! Could we go tomorrow?"

"Yes, but I think it would be best to travel at night, as I wish to keep the existence of the American Eagle a secret for a while."

"That is wise. Let us start at eleven tomorrow evening."

Napoleon bowed, and so the matter was settled.

The Countess Rosette Rosiny was led into the room.

Astra embraced the countess kindly. "Welcome to our continent, my dear countess."

Countess Rosette sobbed. Her heart seemed touched by the kind reception given her by the representative of the greatest republic. But though Napoleon Edison was a scientist, inventor and a discoverer, he could not see into the heart of the weak, beautiful woman. And he knew what was going on within it, he would have acted differently.

Astra invited the countess to stay with her in the Crystal Palace. It was almost midnight when Napoleon left, assuring Astra that he would call for her at eleven the next evening.

At the time appointed he was at the door with a powerful automobile. Astra refused to sit in the tonneau of the machine, so Napoleon assisted her to the seat beside him and the wheel and she let her hand rest lightly on his arm. The big machine ran evenly out of town, into the suburbs, and turned into a big garden that was a natural forest. The large mansion was deserted, but a garage showed signs of life. A broad stream of light spread out into the quiet summer night from one window. The sound of Napoleon's horn must have been familiar to the occupant of the building, as the large door was pushed open in time to let the last car enter.

Napoleon stopped the car and assisted the President down. Then taking the arm of a man who opened the door, he said:

"Excellency, allow me to present Mr. Santos Duprel, my best and trusted comrade."

The short man bowed with reverence.

"Is everything ready?" asked Napoleon. The little man nodded.

Napoleon opened a door and led his guest through it; Santos locked the door of the garage and followed them. The room they entered opened skyward. A shimmering object, entirely filling the place, gleamed in the starlight. Napoleon led the President up a few steps into a small space that was inclosed, but with something that was perfectly transparent, and asked how to sit down on a couch.

"Will you kindly wait here for a few moments?" he asked, and he went farther forward. Astra's eyes became used to the dim light; she saw Napoleon stop before some complicated mechanism and a steering wheel. Santos came and closed the door through which they had entered the car. Electric sparks flew from something at the front.

"Are you ready?" asked Santos.

"Ready!" was Napoleon's reply as he turned a lever. The machine started upward and two huge wings that Astra had not noticed before, began to beat.

The American flag saluted the cheering men, then a white flag of truce appeared beside it.

the slightest shock, yet she realized that they were going up with great velocity. The machine was practically noiseless, the only sound being a whistling murmur caused by the beating wings.

The countess was perceptible and Astra wrapped her cloak more closely about her. Napoleon gave a twist to the wheel, and with a small light studied his map and the compass.

Santos now took the wheel and Napoleon sat down opposite the President. He pointed out the different places as they rushed over them—Frankfort, Louisville, St. Louis, Wichita, Ashland, Santa Fe, Prescott and Los Angeles—then came the ocean. Astra sat silent. She had a great mind and her appreciative qualities were far above the average.

"The greenish light that you see just before us is the Island of Clyre," said Napoleon.

A few minutes later the aerodrome settled down in a very large hangar, but as the place was dark Astra could not see the machine and its outer appearance. Napoleon helped her out, and, showing her his watch, convinced her that they had made the trip in three hours; it was eleven o'clock, according to Pacific time.

"As rapidly as the earth revolves," remarked Astra.

Napoleon led Astra into a large, square building in the center of the group. A peculiar odor greeted her nostrils as she entered. It was not disagreeable, but reminded her of some oppressive tropical flower. She followed Napoleon into the private laboratory.

Hours passed while Napoleon told the President everything, and the dawn was breaking as he led her out into the air. He led her to the hangar again, and turning all the electric lights on, he showed her all the aerodromes. "Six in all, and with these I can fight against the world and win."

Before Astra could reply, he said: "And now, your excellency, I would like to introduce you to the queen of this little colony."

Astra felt faint, but followed Napoleon as if in a dream.

They went to the nearest cottage. In the doorway stood a beautiful matron waiting to receive them.

"Mother," said Napoleon, "let me introduce you to her excellency, the President of the United Republics."

Astra stepped forward and before Mrs. Edison could utter a word she embraced and kissed her, then, bowing her head on the matron's bosom, she wept tears of joy.

Neither spoke. They seemed to understand each other.

CHAPTER X.

Between Z Rays.

The general of the confederated European army and navy had arrived on the scene of action. The first line of resistance was down, and he believed the American continent ready for occupancy. In his official aeroplane he had hurried to take command.

Shortly after his arrival the scouting cruiser, Beelzebub, ran into the second line of Z rays and so reported by wireless to the admiral's ship. The man of war shook his fist toward the west: "You will not escape me, nevertheless!" He was angry and gave hurried orders to lay the necessary cables and move the engineering boats forward.

He had hardly finished his orders when another message came that was trifling, yet it annoyed him. The cruising aeroplane sent word that a tremendous American eagle was approaching from the west. Many remembered that the eagle had been seen above Berlin; many of the sea-mon predicted disaster. Others laughed and did not take the news seriously.

The Count von Wardenstein stood on the bridge of the flagship Empress.

Brigitte. His powerful glass eagerly sought the western horizon, searching the sky for that eagle.

The strange air craft crept nearer, headed directly for the flagship. The count saw that the under portion of the body was transparent, and that a single man was in it.

When the air craft arrived about two hundred feet above the flagship he, white and blue flag with the stars was unfurled, and the craft stopped its flight, resting easily on the air, lazily moving its wings.

Was it the wonderful performance which had thrilled the seamen, or was it as intended cheer? Nobody knows, but all those who could see the eagle showed a huzzah. Only one man hit his lips nervously, the Count von Wardenstein.

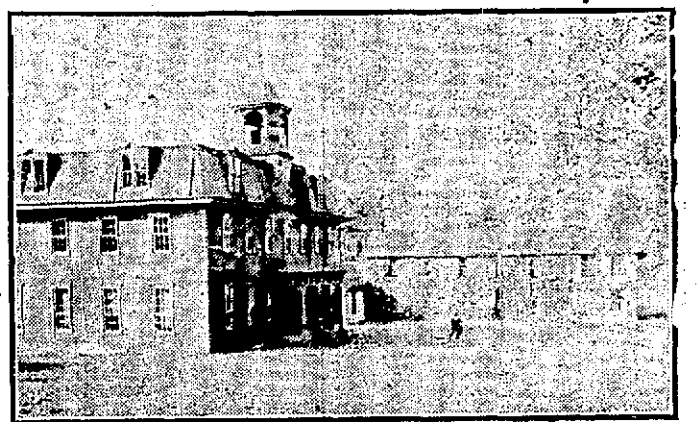

The American flag saluted the cheering men, then a white flag of truce appeared beside it.

$20,000 TO BUY JUMONVILLE SCHOOL IS AIM OF NEGROES

Twenty-Day Campaign is Launched for Uplift of the Race in Fayette County; Legislature Gives Its Support to the Movement.

The negroes of Fayette County will launch a 20-day campaign next Monday to raise $20,000 necessary to complete arrangements for the purchase of the Sailors' and Soldiers' Orphan School property at Jumonville for a training school for younger members of the race. The proposition involves $20,000, half of which has already been appropriated by the State Legislature, but which will not be available until the remaining $10,000 is raised by the negroes themselves. Already $4,000 of this amount has been subscribed, and the campaign which will open on Monday is for the purpose of raising the remainder.

The trustees of the new institution additional sum. The buildings and equipment are ample for immediate use, it is stated.

Those interested in the movement point to the fact that churches of this county have for the past 40 years been contributing liberally toward the support of schools for negroes in South. They are now urging that this

NEUTRAL WATERS.

River Stretches Where Fishermen Only Waste Their Time.

According to old fishermen, there is what might be called neutral ground, or, rather, neutral water, in rivers, where there is no use of trying to make a catch unless it be that some fool fish with a piscatorial brainstorm snatches bait as an insane human might grab a red-hot stove.

This neutral water is the part of the river where its flow encounters the saline impregnation of the salt water of the bay or ocean into which it finally empties. With the salt and the flow of the tide the salt water of the bay runs up into the river for miles, and on the reverse the fresh water descends several miles again to the bay leading into the salt sea.

There is a midway between the salt and fresh water points, however, that very seldom shifts. Around this midway shad and blue and other salt water fish, if they visit at all, will hover on the ocean side. On the fresh water fringe will loiter such fish as labrid currents that are devoid of the saline ingredient. If the fisherman happens to cast bait in this neutral zone he is not likely to get either one kind or the other.—New York Sun.

Obeyed the Dream.

Life is sometimes saved by dream warnings. Take the case of Dr. Harvey, the celebrated discoverer of the circulation of the blood. When he was a young man he set out from London to go to Padua, in Italy, the seat of the famous university where he wished to study. When he got to Dover the governor refused to let him enter his packet to cross the channel, but declined to give any reason. The next day news arrived at Dover that the packet had been lost with every soul on board. Then the governor explained his strange conduct. He said that he had had a dream of overwhelming force, in which he was forbidden to allow a young man, whose face appeared to him, to enter the boat. When Harvey presented himself the governor recognized the face seen in his dream.

A Literary Cynic.

"Some day," said the novelist, "I'm going to write something big—something that will make the world remember me."

"Ah, yes," his friend replied, "but when are you going to do it?"

"Just as soon as I have turned out enough trash to make me independent."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Violet Hill, York, Pa.—"My hands were sore with eczema over three years. The eczema broke out in pimples, Jan. 15, 1912. It itched and pained awfully, and caused me to lose much sleep at night on account of itching. I could not put my hands in water or do other work. My hands were very unpleasant to look at. GREENSBURG, May 24.—Noah Hough, convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of Chief of Police Michael Entinger, of Monaca, was sentenced to not less than 12 years and not more than 20 years' solitary confinement in the Western Penitentiary. Judge McConnell said that because of the evidence introduced to show that Hough had placed his daughter in a resort, prayers for leniency could not be heard.

John Samlak of Swedtown, who killed Joseph Karaschick May 1, was sentenced to the Penitentiary for not less than three years and not more than 10 years. Emmel Libert of Monaca, who killed E. S. Mox February 13, was sentenced to the Huntington reformatory. Judge Van Swearingen of Fayette county is assisting in the murder trials, 11 having been scheduled for this term.

The girl declares she was lured here by Butler under the promise of marriage.

The old-time reliability goes right into the fibre of the fine wool goods used in these summer suits; it goes into every stitch in the tailoring—it follows the tailors' hand everywhere into the innermost parts of every garment, up and down the coat lapel, along the edges and seams and around the armholes, for that is the only way in which shape-retaining summer clothes can be made.
